CHAIRMAN'S REPORT YEAR 2013

Gosh, what a year! Either I am getting old and can't keep up or 2013 was short of some days because it ran out at such a phenomenal speed.

2013 has been interesting and challenging, but I believe that this has helped to make us tougher, wiser and bigger and an appreciated voice in firearms, sport shooting and hunting fraternity.

The club's membership is 254 members in total at present, compare with last year of 210 members and 195 the previous year, therefore a definite increase of membership.

The activities and events planned during 2013 went remarkably well. The events were well attended and it is clearly noticeable that more of our members and visitors are taking part in these activities and events. It is this kind of commitment that makes being part of our Club so exciting and rewarding.

One of the highlights was the very successful SAPS National Championships. Other popular events that took place were once again the Rifle Workshop/Pre-hunting Challenge, Top Gun Shoot, Pin Shooting and Practical Pistol Shoots. The Pin Shooting and Practical Pistol Shoots of the club are showing a healthy growth.

A Clay Pigeon event was also arranged last year and I was surprised with the attendance that day. Optimistically this event will continue this year and thereon.

Congratulations to those members that achieved great heights on different shooting disciplines and those members that received Gold, Silver, Bronze medals, certificates and other prizes.

My sincere appreciation goes to those members who went out of their way to honor their commitment with helping and organizing events and specially assist with the upgrade and renovation of the Club buildings, grounds and equipment. I have been profoundly touched by the commitment and dedication with which the committee and members have tackled the challenges that came our way this past year.

Theft and vandalism at the club and on the ranges are taking place on a continuous basis and causes immense financial losses for the shooting club.

We once again insist on our members to be on guard and report any strangers and misbehaviour on and around the ranges.

A special thanks to our editor Amelia Oberholzer for the effort she puts in with regards to the Newsletters. The Newsletter is the mouthpiece of the Club and I believe that the editor will welcome all contributions from the members.

Although there is still quite a lot of developing to be done to cover all the shooting disciplines the new Web Site is now up and running. Please make an effort to go onto the Web Site.

You are most welcome to forward suggestions to place on the Web Site or in the Newsletter.

We strongly believe and are committed to carry out our part towards the environment and conservation by ensuring that the club grounds and ranges are clean of any kind of pollution and contamination. Retrieving cartridges and lead bullets from the range at any time possible and by looking after our ranges and roads and not causing any erosion will prove to the NRCS that we do make an effort to conserve and care for our environment.

We urge all our members to support the Club in this regard.

Once again I would to make use of this opportunity to also express thanks to all Visitors, supporters, Businesses and SAPS, for your support and cooperation during 2013.

Looking ahead, 2014 will present Buffalo River Shooting Club with new challenges and opportunities.

I would like to wish all our members, trainers, funders, supporters and their families, as well as Buffalo River Shooting Club committee members a wonderful and prosperous 2014!!

May 2014 bring you happiness, health and success?

Best wishes,

Geoff Müller
Chairman, Buffalo River Shooting Club

Range Matters

Attention !!!

- In all shoots or events there should always be a person in charge and should be the responsible person for the shoot or event.
- This person should ensure that all shooters and non shooters sign the Register book, before any shooting takes place.
- Membership cards must be presented to the caretaker when signing the Register book.
- This person should ensure that all shooters and non shooters are aware of all the rules of the club.
- This person is responsible for the safety of all the shooters and non-shooters of the shoot or event.
- No vehicles are allowed on the range except when shooting at ranges 8 to 13.
- Quads & Motor Cycles are strictly forbidden on the range area of 27 ha without prior arrangements for organized shoots/events.

Reports / Range Register

By this time everybody should know that a new system have been implemented. There are two separate registers. One for members and one for non members. An appeal is once again made to all members to complete the register at all times before shooting.

The reports are available on request at a nominal fee of R10.00. This is to cover the printing costs. Contact Gys Viljoen if you require a report of your range visits. The report reflects data from 2007-12- 17 onwards .

Honorary Membership

The matter of honorary membership was discussed at the AGM in January 2008. The following definitions and criteria were set up: Honorary: Selected and appointed by the Committee on a yearly basis for services rendered to the Club or for special recognition. (Valid for one year)

Life Time Honorary: Nominated by members and elected at the AGM, subject to the following criteria/limitations:

- Twenty years uninterrupted paid membership and active participation in Club activities.
- Twenty years uninterrupted service as committee member, with record of service to the Club.
- Chairman, after retirement with four years uninterrupted service.
- A maximum of 5% of the Club members may be life time honorary members.
- Achieving at provincial and National level and at the same time promoting BRSC at all times with a minimum of five years. Nominations for such membership shall be submitted to the secretary, two weeks prior to the AGM, in writing and shall be placed before the AGM for ballot at the discretion of the Committee.

Statistics (2013-01-01 to 2013-12-31)

- Ninety Seven (97) out of One Hundred and Eighty Four (184) members visited the range.
- Here is a breakdown of member visits per month for 2013.
 - ✍ January - 188
 - ✍ February - 240
 - ✍ March - 289
 - ✍ April - 219

Smith & Wesson unveil their new monster revolver - 'a great gun for a back-up gun or for hunting'

- Backpack cannon is for 'when critters are big enough to eat you'
- Packs a huge .460 calibre bullet, shock handle and high-vis sight
- Smith & Wesson admit that handguns are 'second choice' to rifles

Gun Manufacturers Smith & Wesson have unleashed their newest revolver: a monster .460 calibre handgun which they say is 'great for a back-up gun, or for hunting'.

Named the 'Backpack Cannon', the gun was unveiled in Las Vegas on Monday at the Shooting, Hunting, and Outdoor Trade show, the largest gun show in the U.S., which around 60,000 gun fans attend every year.

The cannon - officially called the Performance centre Model.460 - features a three-inch barrel, high visibility sights and synthetic shock absorber on the rear of the handle, as well as a massive chamber to fit the gigantic .460 calibre rounds, which are some of the biggest and most powerful bullets in the world.

Fearless deer approaches hunters, licks rifle

Three hunters were shocked when a deer approached them and began licking a rifle one was firing.

Buffalo News

One of the men fired off several rounds, but the fearless deer didn't even flinch. "He's not even freaking out," said the man videotaping the encounter.

When he notices that the deer walking up to a man laying on the ground with a rifle, the video taper yells out, "Hey Tim, hold [fire]!"

When that hunter, identified only as Tim, realizes that the deer had boldly walked straight towards him and his gun, he stops firing. Tim and the cameraman then pet the deer, who begins to sniff the rifle. To the amazement of the hunters, the deer calmly eats some grass directly around their rifle and even proceeds to lick the gun itself.

"He's licking the gun!" the cameraman exclaims. He notes that next time they go hunting they won't need any decoys to lure in deer because this animal will be their "natural deer attractor."

The story ends well -- the impressed hunters let the deer walk away unharmed, although it was unlikely to have been in any danger in the first place. Hunters don't generally target fawns.

self-defense training because it teaches good gun handling skills, ads pressure you can't get shooting alone, and forces you to measure your skills so you know your level of confidence.

Unfortunately, many new shooters are apprehensive about entering the world of practical pistol competition so we put this guide together to help guide to address many common excuses.

Excuse 1: "My gun isn't good enough."

Practical pistol shooting is designed to allow you to compete with the gun you carry or use to defend yourself. There is a class for nearly every gun 9mm or larger

Excuse 2: "I don't have the right gear."

If you have a hip holster that cover the trigger guard, enough magazines to hold 15 rounds and pockets, you have the right gear for your 1st match! Until you get the hang of things, there is nothing wrong placing your magazines in your pockets as long as you can access them safely.

Excuse 3: "I am a defensive shooter and gun games will get you killed."

Nope!

It is important to understand a shooting competition isn't a gun fight, but a gun fight is most definitely a shooting competition.

You are very unlikely to forget that someone is shooting at you and forget how to use cover appropriately. However you are also very unlikely to forget the gun handling, problem solving and shooting proficiency honed in competition. Go compete!

Excuse 4: "There isn't anywhere around here that I can shoot!"

Wrong!! Buffalo river shooting club is waiting for you.

Getting Started in Practical Pistol Competition

Competition is one of the most fun things you can do with a pistol and it is a great addition to

Buffalo News

The mouthpiece of the Buffalo River Shooting Club

January 2014

Volume 18, Number 1

Excuse 5: "I'm not good enough."

Well... You aren't going to win!?!

But, that really isn't the point either. For almost every shooter the goals of competition are to 1) Have fun 2) Hang out with great people 3) Compete.

In fact, if you really want to get better in addition to attending matches, you need to be able to identify your weaknesses and practice. To be very good you have to enjoy practicing even more than the matches.

- If you aren't keeping score, there is no reason to get better
- Missing too fast
- Movement, my match day nemesis
- Practice doesn't make perfect, it makes permanent
- A Dry Fire Routine

Dun, Dun, Dun! Eventually everyone gets Disqualified.

It is going to happen. It doesn't mean you are bad person (unless you were purposefully cheating!). It doesn't mean you are dangerous.

What it is, is an opportunity to learn from a mistake.

You will dwell on it for a couple of days, you will analyze what happened, you will figure out how to keep it from happening again.

The 3 steps to handling a DQ well on match day are the following...

1. Own your mistake. The RO didn't DQ you. You disqualified yourself and they alerted you to the infraction. Apologize to them for ruining their day, because they didn't want to do it.
2. Take 5-10 mins and cool off. You aren't going to be happy with the situation. You may be angry. You will be embarrassed. Let that pass, put your gear away and come back to your squad.
3. Help paste targets and be a good sport. You are not kicked off the range you just can't play more for that match. If you storm off the other shooters will likely talk about you, if you stick around they will talk to you. But just as importantly you force them to work more and paste more targets which is unfair to them.

Message from the practical Pistol shooting discipline co-ordinator

SAPSA has awarded NKZN Shooting Association an amount of R5000 which has to be utilized to host a development day, or two.

BRSC will host the event early in 2014.

Andre van Straaten, with the help of a few others, are busy putting together a program for the event.

The final date(s) and program will be published shortly. In short, the purpose of the event is precisely what it says, to develop existing shooters and to expand IPSC in our region.

This event will be open to anyone who is interested in either furthering him/herself in the sport and / or for anyone who is interested in participating in IPSC.

Looking forward to seeing you there!!

IS PRACTICAL PISTOL COMPETITION STILL PRACTICAL?

Modern Pistol craft has grown forcefully and dramatically since its birth in Southern California three decades ago. And, not surprisingly, there are a number of issues that have significantly influenced its success. Declining economies and social chaos, resulting in rising crime and terrorism, have spawned renewed interest in personal protection. Thus, particularly in the civilian sector, with little or no access to hard data concerning these issues, there is great interest in the concept of using competition to enhance personal weapon craft skills.

And, in the beginning, this goal was pretty much achieved: most competitively developed techniques did further the state-of-the-art. We now know more about carrying, presenting, shooting, reloading and modifying the handgun than ever before. Many courses of fire and practice drills are beneficial as well and increasing numbers of practical shooting clubs are springing up all over the country.

However, toward the end of the 1970s, an alarming trend began to emerge. As used in its original context, the term "practical," was defined as a socio-politically acceptable synonym for "combat." The original purpose of the International Practical Shooting Confederation, for example, was to promote advancement of the handgun as a self-defence weapon. After all, the mission of the handgun is, in fact, defensive, right? We came this far by keeping this in mind, thus preventing a loss of purpose and resultant deviation from the intended theme of development.

Unfortunately, many participants in what came to be called "practical" shooting either forgot this critical fact or were never cognizant of it in the first place. Predictably, therefore, the organization's goal was altered towards competition being an end unto itself, rather than a means to a higher goal -- i.e. as a research tool by which better ways were found to utilize the handgun in a self-defence environment.

One example of this deviation is the "track meet," where physical movement assumes disproportionate competitive value. Stimulation of the metabolism via physical exertion is a legitimate simulation of the effects of stress. Used correctly, it provides an accurate picture of how various techniques can be expected to perform in real-world situations. However, when emphasis upon physical prowess begins to rival weapon skills in importance, things go astray. To see the fallacy in this, we need only to recall that the handgun is a defensive arm -- i.e. we carry it so we don't have to run!

The method commonly used to determine competitor performance is the "Comstock Count," which divides the shooter's point score by his elapsed time, for a points-per-second evaluation of his performance. In and of itself, the Comstock Method is not invalid. The problem is that it was intended for short-duration time frames, not complex "assault courses" in which the shooter moves considerable distances from location to location, solving multiple shooting problems along the way. When utilized improperly, "Comstocking" allows the speed at which the contestant moves from place to place to overshadow his shooting skills, making it a less than optimum way to judge what is supposedly a shooting match.

Another problem is that those who do not carry a handgun on a daily basis often lack an understanding of it as a weapon. This results in the creation of competitive courses that are not valid simulations of the situations in which a handgun is typically used. True, diversity prevents stagnation, but when diversity for its own sake becomes the issue, rather than being used as one element of consideration in trying to reach a higher goal, it becomes obfuscatory and therefore detrimental.

There is an even more serious, if subtle, danger here, too. The use of unrealistic courses of fire can -- and often does -- promote the development of tactics and techniques that, while competitively efficient, are from a tactical standpoint suicidal. As well, such courses favour the Condition One (cocked & locked) auto-pistol that many law enforcement and military personnel, because they must use issued DA autos or revolvers, cannot carry.

If competition is to be a means by which handgun state-of-the-art is to be advanced, we must maintain interest and competitive spirit, while at the same time remembering our original goal. Still, requiring competitors to do things that are virtually guaranteed to get them killed in a real fight is abominable and should not be allowed to continue.

This is admittedly easier said than done, and has, in fact, fallen by the wayside, causing a rift between those who regard the handgun as a weapon (the "Warriors") and those who view it as a recreational tool (the "Gamesmen") seriously enough to rip IPSC apart.

The "Gamesmen" have contributed a number of useful techniques even if their motives and tactics weren't survival-oriented. Most of the original Combat Masters weren't interested in the handgun as a defensive tool and only a few of them carried a gun for a living. Yet, their contributions -- the Weaver Stance, the Speed Load, et al -- have been incalculably valuable and, in fact, positively influenced the evolution of practical pistol craft.

In short, we need "Gamesmen" to prevent stagnation, but at the same time, in order to benefit from their efforts, we must view their attitudes, motivations and accomplishments with a critical eye. Conversely, we need "Warriors," too, because while their philosophy isn't especially innovative, it is truly practical and keeps us on the track to finding better ways to stay alive in a pistol fight.

Other issues of conflict between the "Warriors" and "Gamesmen" include the use of:

- Irrelevant targets. The use of silhouette targets typical to IPSC competition connotes an anti-personnel situation. Therefore, scoring methods should be based upon an accurate representation of the human anatomy. If the development of anti-personnel methodology is not the goal, then humanoid targets should not be utilized.
- Unrealistically specialized guns, holsters and other ancillary equipment and squib-loaded ammunition. These further

Buffalo News

The mouthpiece of the Buffalo River Shooting Club

January 2014

obfuscate the original goal of practical competition and makes evaluation of the techniques developed with such equipment more difficult. The use of "street legal" service guns, full-powered ammunition and realistic holsters and spare ammunition carrying devices should be mandatory if a real-world view is to be maintained.

So, is Practical Pistol Competition still practical? No, obviously not. As is typical with most types of competition, as viewed from its original perspective, it has become a highly specialized and irrelevant game -- an end unto itself rather than a means to a higher goal -- of little or no tactical value.

However, with a little tolerance on both sides and a few basic rules to prevent loss of purpose, we can produce a champion without compromising our integrity. The concept of learning is the basis upon which man has elevated himself above the level of both his cohabitants on this planet and his own ancestors. In order to continue this process, we cannot afford to lose sight of our goals along the way. If we can unite the "Gamesman" and "Warrior" factions within the practical shooting fraternity into a cohesive body truly dedicated to advancement, we all -- "Gamesmen" and "Warriors" alike -- win.

Besides, wouldn't it be more satisfying to be the Champion at something relevant and real?

National Shooting Association

Principal Objectives:

The National Shooting Association (NSA) is a South Africa based, apolitical, non-racist, and non-sexist shooting association with the following principle objectives:

The NSA is a SAPS Accredited Hunting and a SAPS Accredited Sport-shooting Association and has its activities focussed on assisting the busy Executive who is an enthusiastic hunter and/or sport-shooter by allowing for members to participate as their time allows them to do.

NSA for instance presents In-House Postal Target Shooting Competitions for all calibres of handguns and all calibres of hunting rifles in a format that allows members to shoot prescribed shooting tables on their own time on ranges of their own choice, without having to be bound by shooting activities which are directed by time and place. Members post shot targets to the office where these are kept on record for purposes of being able to present proof of activities when members have to renew their firearm licences.

10-year-old accidentally kills mom with air rifle

Johannesburg - A 10-year-old girl accidentally shot and killed her mother with an air rifle her brother got as a Christmas present, Beeld reported on Friday.

The 45-year-old woman died in a Cape Town hospital on Christmas eve, following the accident in Oude Westhoff, Bellville.

NSA annually informs its members of hunting opportunities and present an Annual National Postal Target Shooting Competition.

THE OBJECTIVES OF THE ASSOCIATION ARE:

- To develop and promote the sport of shooting in all its forms, including competitive rifle, pistol and shotgun shooting, sporting shooting and hunting with firearms and other hunting equipment; the research, development, and reloading of cartridges and cartridge loads for competition, target, hunting and sporting use ("the sport");
- To educate practitioners of the sport and the general public regarding firearms and shooting in general; the safe and responsible use of firearms for competitive, sporting and hunting purposes, the safe use of firearms, environmental conservation and ethical standards in the sport;
- To promote and support the conservation of the world's natural habitat and the sustainable use of wildlife based on scientific data and on sound economic principles;
- To co-operate, as responsible law-abiding citizens, with the Government and Authorities of the various countries in which the organisation has members in the promotion of the sport, the safe and responsible use of firearms, and the legal right to own such firearms, and;
- To raise funds in order to carry out or assist programmes to promote the sport in all its forms with accent on Southern Africa.

that the NSA is of the opinion that the Act is regarded as a positive development in responsible firearm ownership in South Africa, and that the effective implementation of the Act will lead to the safer use of firearms in this country - it will also combat the high levels of violent criminal activity committed with illegal firearms.

NSA is a SAPS (CFR) Accredited Hunting Association and a SAPS (CFR) Accredited Sport-shooting Association.

Policy positions:

- the right to legally own and use firearms
- a strong and unified voice for appropriate training in the legal use of firearms
- the development of conservation-based rural development projects generating income through sustainable use (conservation-based community involvement and sustainable hunting)
- backing and supporting government's initiative in biodiversity conservation through sustainable use and the endeavour to in this manner contribute to the eradication of rural poverty
- balanced comments on safe use of firearms, sport shooting, and sustainable responsible hunting in the media
- high standards in the safe, responsible, and accountable ownership and use of firearms.

NSA's position on the implementation of the Firearms Control Act:

The National Shooting Association is committed to working with the South African Police Service (SAPS) and the Central Firearms Registry (CFR) to meet the objectives of the Firearms Control Act (Act 60 of 2000 as amended). It is stressed

Vision and Mission

-  Reduce Crime In South Africa
-  Improve Service Delivery
-  Create Safer South African Communities
-  Unite South Africans in the Pursuit of Common Goals
-  Empower South Africans To Reduce Crime
-  Support SAPS Where Possible
-  Make South Africans Accountable
-  Promote Economic Growth
-  Restore Hope

Effective Incident Communication:

SA CAN uses, adapts and pioneers frontline technology to ensure effective communication amongst our ever-growing network of South Africans. Our systems harness the eyes and ears of the public to help combat crime.

Incident Management with Results:

SA CAN has carefully cultivated personal relations with all relevant emergency service providers, including SAPS (all units, i.e. SAPS, Metro Police, SAPS Dog Units, SAPS Airwing, Organised Crime, Provincial Operations), private security companies, medical emergency services and community safety and security resources. Users of our Incident Management Centre (IMC) receive the direct benefit of these relationships in the form of efficient and effective levels of response to emergency situations. SA CAN Duty Managers continue providing support to emergency service providers until the best possible result is achieved. Countless emergency services personnel have told us that it is support of this nature that helps them to stay motivated, which in turn further cements these critical relationships and enhances our ability to co-ordinate the best possible response to any emergency.

Community Crime Prevention Projects:

SA CAN runs several crime prevention programs that embrace both the suburban and township communities. These effective and extremely inexpensive projects are partially financed by Member subscriptions, precisely because they increase the number of eyes and ears we can call upon for crime-fighting information. To date the projects have directly resulted in suspect arrests and convictions which is critical.
